

Be Cautious when using FamilySearch.org's Search Genealogy

By Joe Petrie

I intended this article to be informative about one feature of the new FamilySearch.org software. Specifically it is about the Search Genealogy software. The Search Genealogy software accesses two files: Pedigree Resource file and Ancestral file. The information in both files is from submissions by FamilySearch users.

FamilySearch.org has the following information and caveats about the files and especially about the accuracy of the information. (Please note that rather than cover both files, I have used only the information for the Pedigree Resource file.)

"Pedigree Resource File (PRF) is a growing collection of user submitted genealogies. It shows individuals' names; family relationships; and dates and places of birth, marriage, and death. No merges, corrections, or additions are made to genealogies submitted to Pedigree Resource File. The most current version of the Pedigree Resource File is available for free on the Internet as part of FamilySearch Genealogies.

"Use Pedigree Resource File to discover what genealogical research has already been done. Use it to guide you towards original records. As with all compiled genealogies, Pedigree Resource File has significant limitations (see below) and more accurate information should be sought from the original records.

"Submitters are responsible for the accuracy of the information. FamilySearch does not check the accuracy of any contributed genealogy.

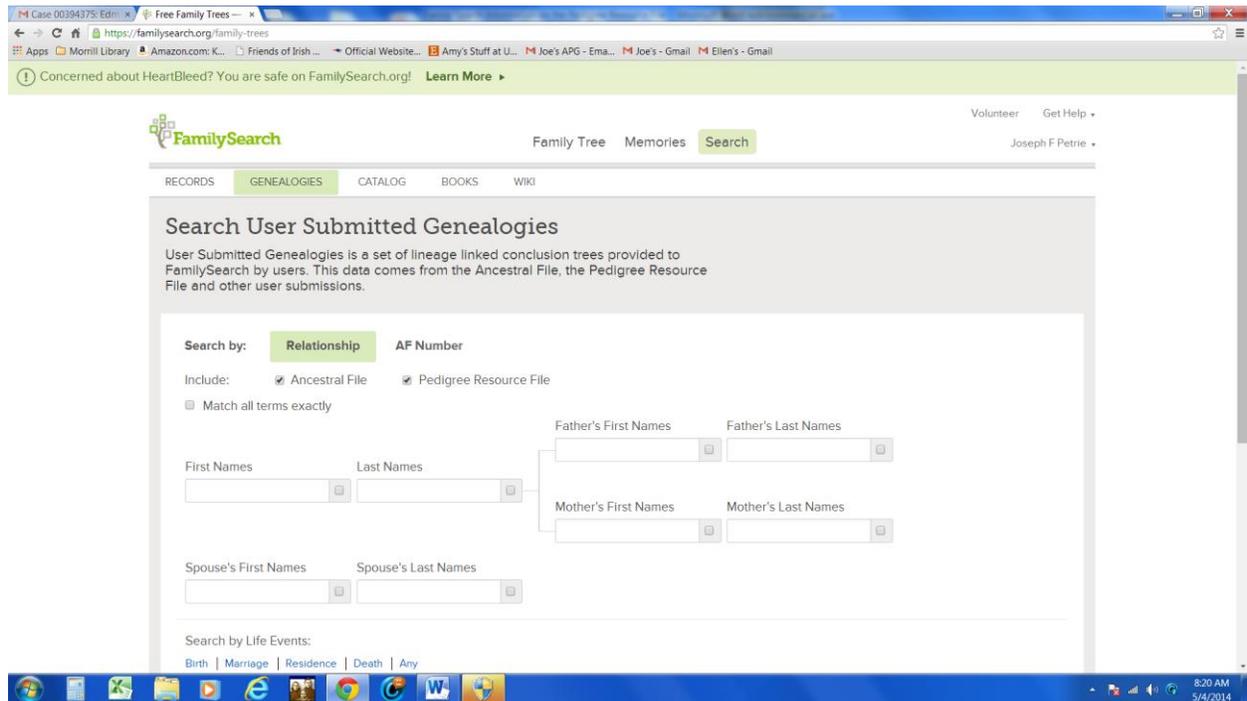

"Information in Pedigree Resource File is second-hand. Verify the information before accepting it.

"Submitter information, previously available, is now hidden for privacy reasons.

"Pedigree Resource File contains many errors and unlike the new FamilySearch Tree, corrections are not accepted. Submitters are advised to make another submission that includes corrections. However, both old and new submissions are left in Pedigree Resource File."

The following sample screens show users how to view the file's records. I used information on two of my ancestors: my Petrie grandfather and his father. My grandfather was Edmund Ernest "Ned" Petrie (born 1872 in Glace Bay and died in 1948 in Glace Bay, NS) the eldest son of Richard P. Petrie and his second wife, Agnes O'Brien, both of Bridgeport, NS. Richard was the grandson of the original Cape Breton Petrie family (George and Isobel). Richard's father Edmund was the eldest of George and Isobel's 5 children and the only one not born in Cape Breton. His wife was Margaret Casey, daughter of Richard Peter Casey of Lingan.

The follow screen results when the user selects Search and Genealogies:

I entered the information for Richard P Petrie and submitted it. The following Screen displayed the results. Please note that the first hyperlinked record is from the Ancestral file and the second hyperlinked record is from the Pedigree Resource file. The major differences between the two records are: Pedigree Resource file's record displays coded information for the source while the Ancestral file record displays both the coded and the actual name of the submitter of the record. The submitter was Karyn Lee Zielasco Cooper, another descendant of Edmund and Margaret, specifically their daughter Anne who married Maurice Sheehan. Karyn submitted the information in 2011. The source of the information was my database where the records were actually provided by Francis Xavier MacGillivray of Glace Bay and Ottawa. Unfortunately, Karyn's information was dated. I had provided it to Karyn in the 1990s and it was never updated. Please note that when I gave Karyn the records, I asked her not to publish them - because they had not been validated.

Ancestral File is a collection of genealogical information taken from pedigree charts and family group records submitted to the Family History Department since 1978. The information has not been verified against any official records. Since the information in Ancestral File is contributed, it is the responsibility of those who use the file to verify its accuracy. I repeated the Search process for my Petrie grandfather, Edmund E. Petrie – because I suspected Karyn’s the dates for him were incorrect. My Dad had once told me that one of the saddest periods of time for him was 1948 – 1949 because his father, mother and Uncle Michael Petrie of Boston had passed away. Years after my father’s death, I recorded their deaths as 1949. Years later I updated my grandparents’ records using their Death Certificate images on the NovaScotiaGenealogy.org web site. Specifically, I changed Edmund’s birth and death values in my database to the dates on the death certificate image.

My grandfather’s record on the Pedigree Resource file shows the same coded information and date as his fathers’ record. Please see the following:

I’ll finish with a reminder that FamilySearch is aware that there are errors. Their advice is:

“Use Pedigree Resource File to discover what genealogical research has already been done. Use it to guide you towards original records. As with all compiled genealogies, Pedigree Resource File has significant limitations ... and more accurate information should be sought from the original records.”

There are a few additional notes that I'll cover here:

1. If you'd like to comment on this or any of my over 20 Record/Research articles, please send your comment(s) to me at joe-apg@norwoodlight.com including a reference to the specific article(s).
2. Also, your suggestions for future articles are welcome. I am currently working on articles on: a review of the free tutorial software that is available on-line from staff at the New England Genealogy and Historical Society (NEHGS); a review of the free tutorials offered by FamilySearch; and an introduction to genealogy article based on a seminar that I gave for the Friends of Irish Research at the Brockton Massachusetts Council for the Aging's Senior Citizen Center.
